

The Search for Six Year Old "Sam"

Reported by: Jivan Almasadeh

Last Friday in Istanbul airport, a six year old child went missing and soon, then was found after two hours.

The incident occurred when Sam and his parents arrived at the gate and started entering the plane. However, they noticed that Sam's seat was empty and they couldn't find him. Fortunately, they reported this problem to the airplane crew and they contacted the airport management and they asked them to leave the plane and go towards the management office. Once they arrived at the office, the chief asked about Sam's identity. He checked the airport cameras, he sent three airport police officers to look for Sam and after two hours of tracking, they found Sam next to a random gate.

"It was a miracle when we saw our sweet Sam safe," expressed one of his parents.

"It was like I had seen a ghost when I saw Sam!" added another one of Sam's parents.

This incident reminded parents all around the world to keep a closer eye on their children, especially in public.
